

Dust can take away your life

George Motaung worked in a foundry for many years. It was very dusty, and at the end of the day his nose was often blocked by all the sand.

After 10 years, Mr Motaung was coughing a lot and feeling tired.

Three years later, he had to leave his job because he had problems breathing when he shovelled sand.

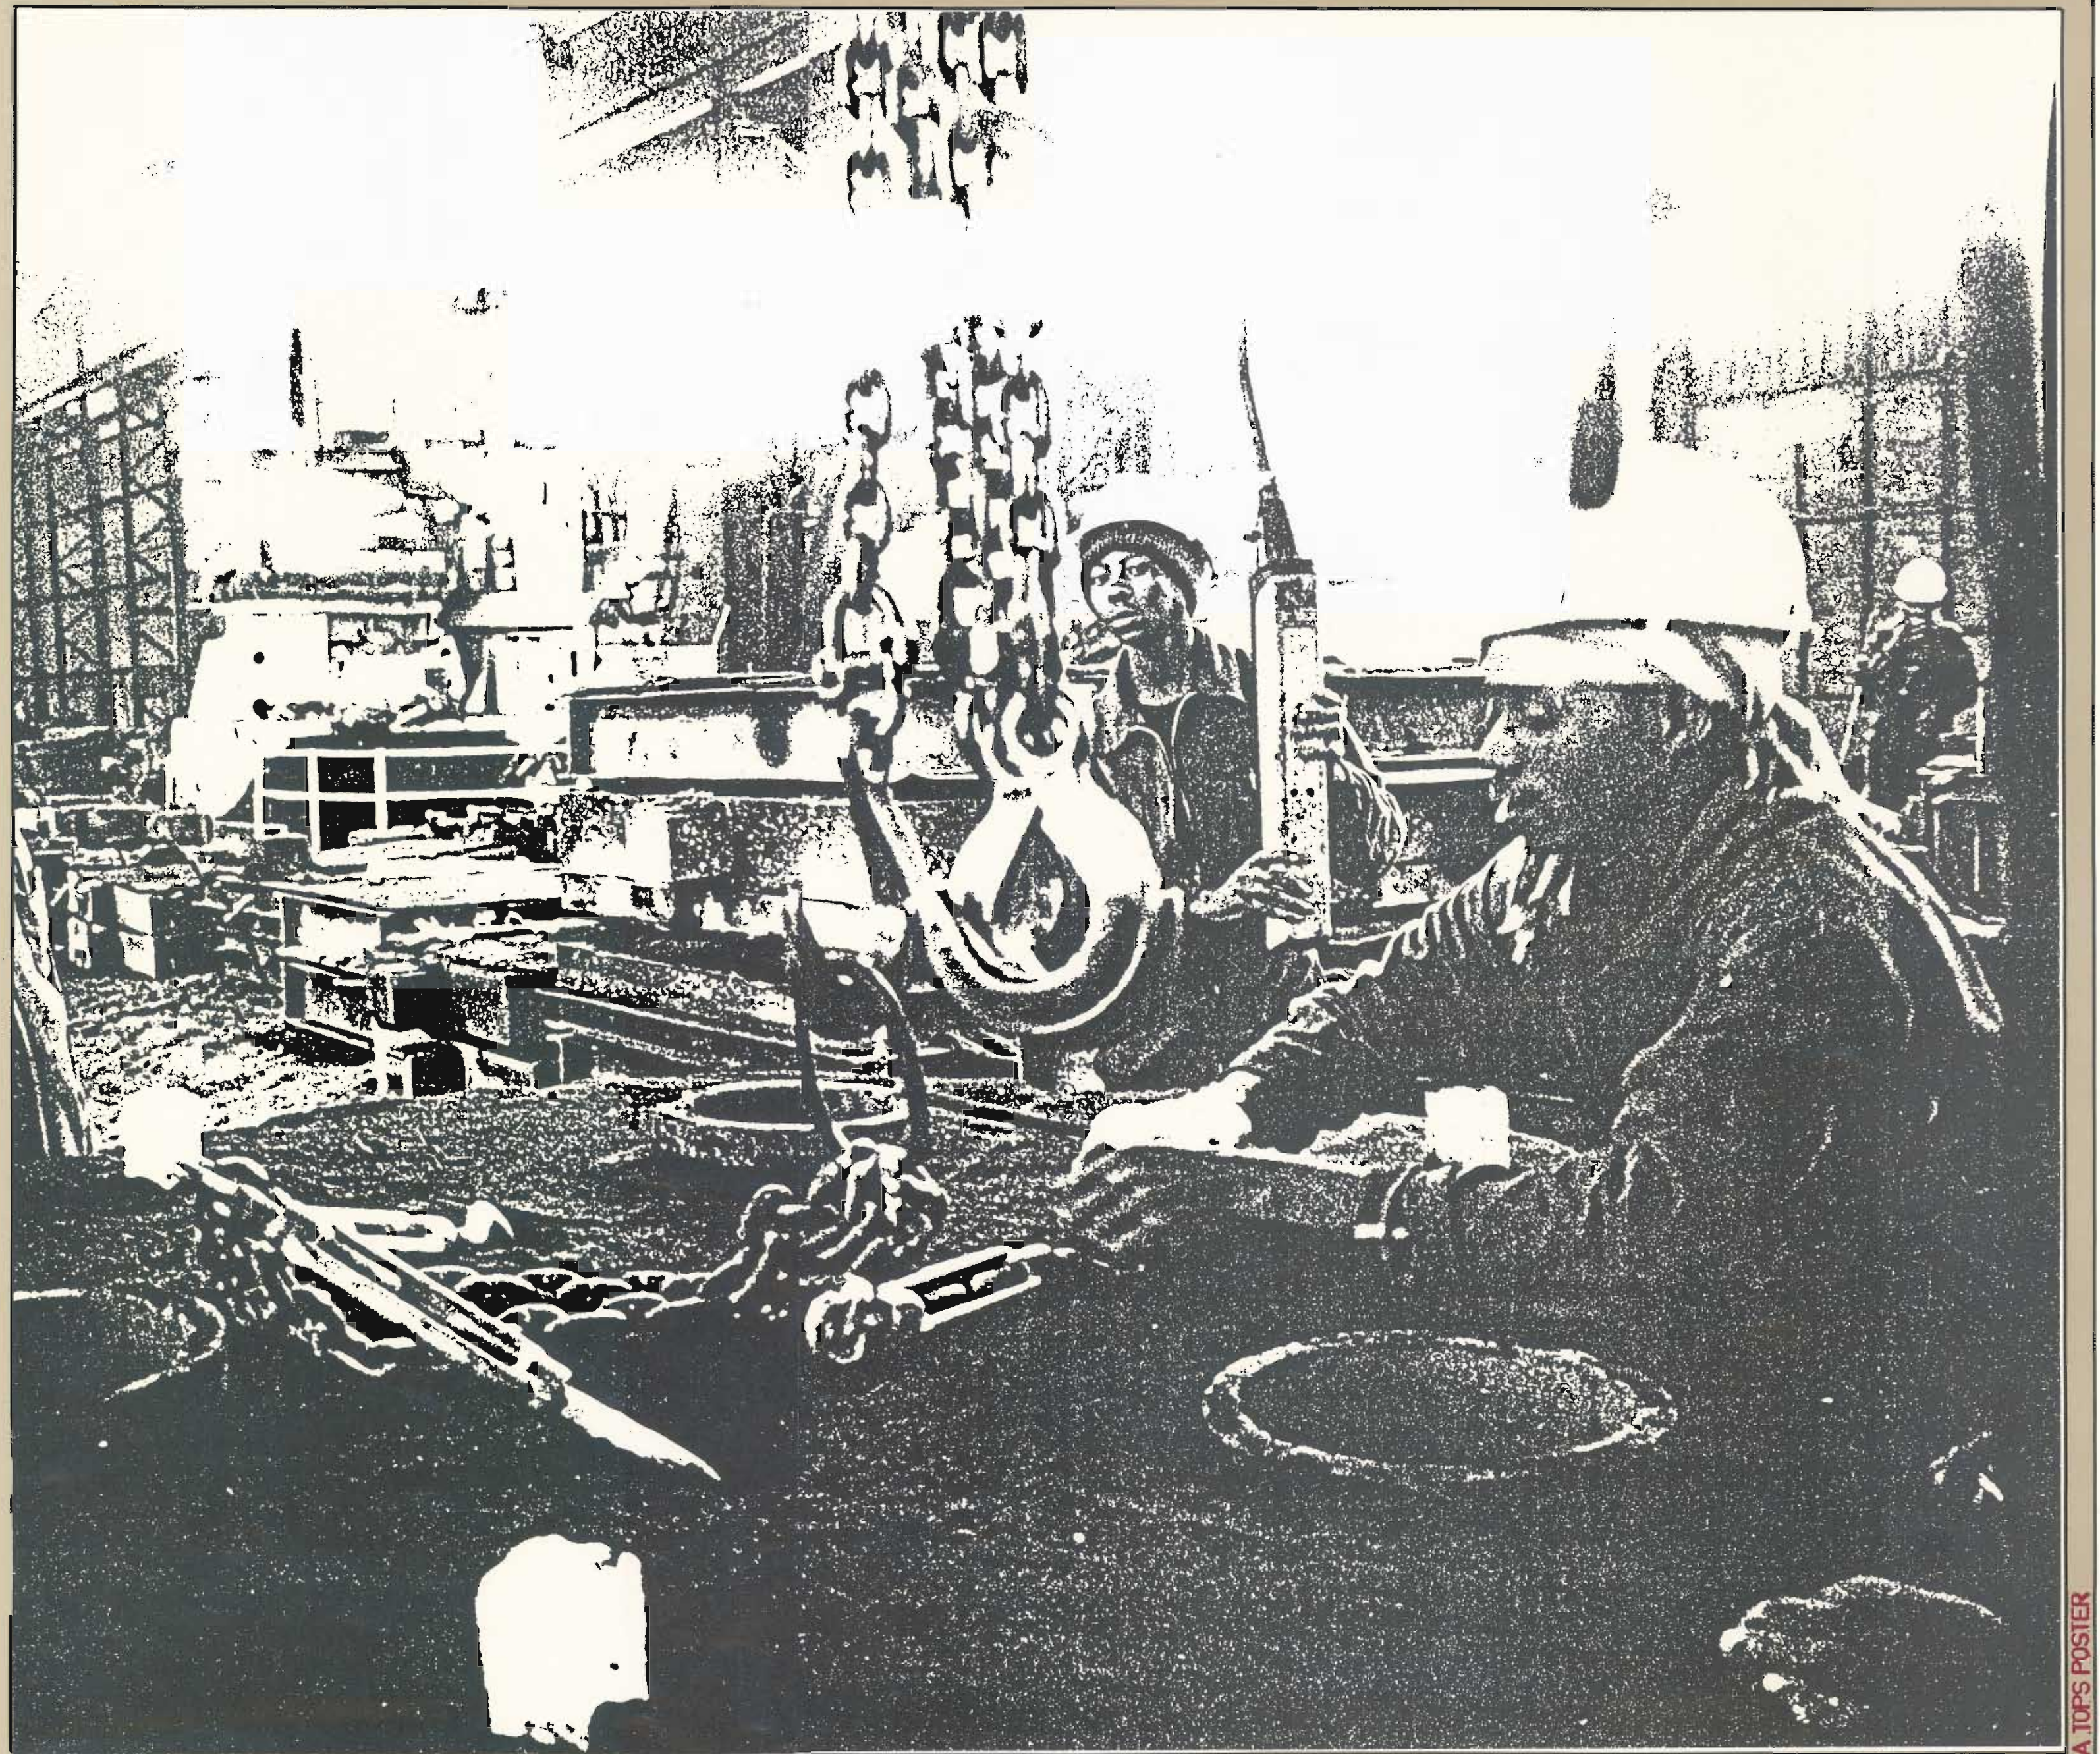

The doctor said Mr Motaung has got a sickness called silicosis.

Dust in the factory caused the disease.

Now, Mr Motaung can't work. He gets tired even walking to the bus stop.

Dust took away Mr Motaung's life.

Dust can be controlled!

Contact TAG for information and help
in fighting dust

TAG